

PAWS OF JUSTICE

THE GOTHAM TAILS

In every city—every alley, rooftop, and storm drain—every creature plays a role. When balance shifts, so does everything else. What happens when the old rules are challenged by an unlikely team?

Gotham never had room for strays. But one stormy night, a lone K9 cop and a fearless kitten cross paths... and the city will never be the same.

Just when the night couldn't get any darker, the silence shattered like glass.
A metallic crash echoed through the alleyways—loud, violent, wrong.
Rex froze. Whiskers tensed. In Gotham, noise like that never meant anything good.

"The Crimson Syndicate doesn't just break laws—they erase order."
"In Gotham's darkest corners, they're the shadows pulling every string."
"Their goal: total blackout—silence the city, control the chaos."

THEY WEREN'T ROBBING THE PLACE...
THEY WERE BUILDING SOMETHING.

"They were born in the same litter. Raised on the same concrete. Rex and Bravo — the Ghosts in Fur."
"Where one went, the other followed. Until the night Bravo didn't come back."
"The reports said he died in the fire. Rex never believed it."
"And now, looking into those red mechanical eyes... he knows he was right."

YOU TRAINED HIM TO SERVE.
THEN TURNED HIM INTO A WEAPON.

HE'S BETTER
THIS WAY.
OBEDIENT.
RUTHLESS. PERFECT.

"This wasn't just a fight."

"It was the moment past and present collided — and neither held back."

I MAY BE SMALL. BUT I'M NOT RUNNING.

SOME FIGHTS AREN'T ABOUT WINNING. THEY'RE ABOUT NOT BACKING DOWN.

HE WAS MORE THAN A PARTNER.
HE WAS A BROTHER. AND NOW... HE'S A WEAPON.

CLANG!

THEY REPROGRAMMED
YOUR BODY, BRAVO...
BUT I KNOW YOU HEART'S STILL IN THERE.

Victory wasn't about who fell. It was about what you chose when you could've finished it.

Rest now, Bravo. Yu did enough. It wasn't your fault.

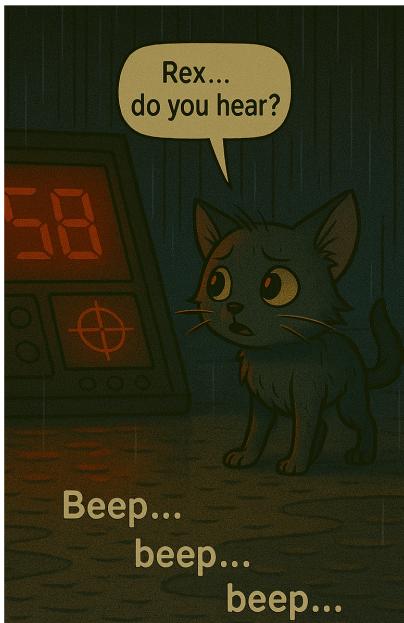

"Rex had already lost Bravo once."
"Now, he had to do it again — this time with his eyes open."
"But tonight, he found peace in the dark."

They stopped the monster.
But the machine is still alive.

Rex... do you hear?

Beep...
beep...
beep...

The Syndicate's
failsafe. If they lose data...they torch everything.

No, no, no...
This is a burn signal.

"The Syndicate didn't plan to lose."
"So they wired their silence into the walls."

Okay... let's see if all those hours
dodging fish market
lasers pays off.

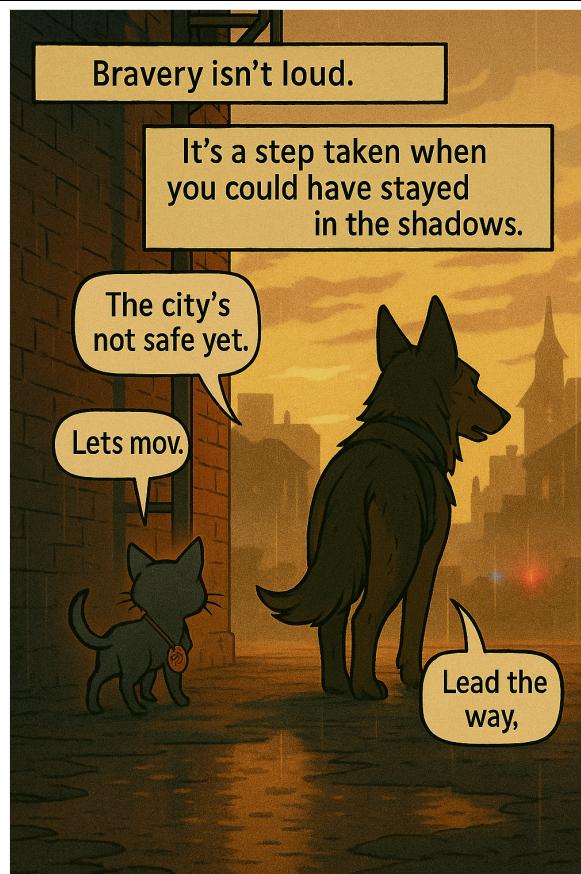

Four seconds left.
One mistake... and Gotham becomes a ghost story.

...You're a stray genius.

"Turns out, the bravest one in the room wasn't trained by a badge."
"She was found in a box... and she saved the city."

"They didn't ask for medals. Didn't wait for applause."
"They'd fought, lost, and still stood tall — one with scars, one with questions."
"Tonight, Rex lost a brother again... but found something he didn't know he needed — a partner."

Gotham doesn't know their names.

But tonight, it gets to see another sunrise... because they stood their ground.

THE END... FOR NOW.

"The machine was shut down. The weapon, disabled. The city saved — for now." "But in Gotham, victory is never the end... just the pause before the next shadow moves."

"The Crimson Syndicate wasn't defeated. It didn't fall." "It retreated. Regrouped. And began to remember."

"From the deepest corners of the city, it watched. Monitored. Took names." "Rex. Whiskers. Two unknowns who disrupted everything." "Two strays who dared to fight back."

"And in doing so... they made enemies."

"Enemies who do not forgive." "Enemies who do not forget."

"Now, the Syndicate is setting the board again." "But this time, they won't just build weapons..." "...they'll build ghosts. Traps. Doubt. War."

"The city was saved once by two unlikely heroes." "The question now is... can they save each other?"

Next Time on Paws of Justice: Echoes of the Syndicate

The machine was only the beginning. The war has a voice... and it remembers.

The machine was shut down.
The weapon disabled.

But the Syndicate?
They were just watching.

